The NonProfit Alliance

A specialized group of non-profit executives assemble to discuss critical issues facing their organizations. They look to become consummate professionals focusing on thought leadership, critical thinking, and entrepreneurial solutions. These executives will use this Council to network, share thoughts and experiences, learn about future trends, and learn from each other.

Why Needed

Organizational leaders, especially in Non-Profits (NP), wear many hats. Keeping up on the latest trends in this industry is on-going. CVA designed this Council to be a forum for NP leaders to express though leadership, critical thinking, entrepreneurial decision-making, and learn from experts in the field. The Council offers a safe, non-threatening environment using a privacy cloak known as The Chatham House Rule.

Composition

A small group of NP leaders meet monthly. CEOs, Executive Directors, Chief Development Officers, and Chief Operations Officers are welcome. This exclusive group will have access to the brightest minds in the NP industry and receive tips and insights for moving organizations into future sustainability.

Factoid

According to the May 2021 Fidelity Charitable Study, “Seismic Shifts to Redefine Philanthropy” there is a movement in giving trends and the definition of philanthropy. According to the article’s author, “Charitable giving is quickly becoming charitable living, impacting not just the non-profit sector, but the way people work, play, and invest broadly.”

Objective

Using a confidential and specifically honest approach to communication, the Council provides the means to learn about new trends, network with like minded people, improve operational support, maximize the business models, and prepare organizations for success.
